

> PROCUREMENT

> Procurement

What we do

NSW Procurement (NSWP), a division of the NSW Department of Services, Technology, and Administration, is the leading provider of government procurement services. NSWP provides procurement expertise, nationally recognised training, state of the art products, services and processes designed to assist government agencies to gain better outcomes and value through smarter procurement.

NSWP assists NSW Government agencies by analysing needs, developing specifications, tendering for business, implementing and managing contracts that deliver value for money.

There is an opportunity to be involved with significant state contracts that deliver direct savings to government agencies by combining their purchasing power. Share ideas and develop strategies with other procurement staff, both within NSWP and from other agencies. Some of our biggest contracts include motor vehicle acquisition, fuel, computers, telecommunications and travel management.

Qualifications

- > Information Technology
- > Project Management
- > Business/Commerce

For you

- > Training and development opportunities in a wide range of major procurement initiatives
- > All NSWP graduates attend the TAFE approved Procurement Certification Training Program
- > Involvement in projects with community and commercial impact
- > Flexible workplace arrangements
- > A competitive salary
- > Ongoing professional development
- > Rewarding, challenging and diverse career path

Further information

www.procurement.nsw.gov.au

Procurement
Government Services

A Division of the Department of Services,
Technology & Administration